Upcoming Meeting - October 23, 2023

Kimberly Pagonis, Fine Art Contemporary Landscape Painter will be doing a demo using oil paints at the October EAA meeting. She will also talk about her newly opened gallery, Terra Rosa Art Gallery & Creative Space.

Kim's subjects reflect vibrant landscapes and rural settings that have a captivating and emoting mood. She says, "My paintings are produced on wood panels which gives me the opportunity to experiment with plein-air painting and small studies on location with the combination of photos to produce larger pieces in the studio. I look for composition with large strong shapes and high contrast; this gives me the room to play with juicy paint strokes. I stand in reverence of my Creator and the truth that only comes looking at nature in its purest form. I paint landscapes to help the viewer see the contrast of this world and their powerful purpose in which we are created. Rather than painting a literal depiction, the paintings are emotional responses. My greatest concern is capturing the spirit of the landscape. As an Artist I want to stir the hope and light of the soul. For the viewer to look outside of themselves and remember what is pure, what is lovely, is there any excellence, and if anything is worthy of praise. I believe beauty is true, and the pursuit of this genuine subject is my motivation."

More information about Kimberly's painting style and her studio can be found on the websites: www.kimpagonis.com and www.terrarosagallery.com
